Then there is a wide relationship and officeholding contingent which lends a hand to Capt. Lamb, and these have not relaxed in their support of the man who is completing his eighth term in Congress from the metropolitan district of Virginia. Speaker Richard E. Byrd, managing the Virginia campaign of Gov. Woodrow Wilon, says that he will press for the election of Harry M. Smith of this city as permanent chairman of the convention at Norfolk next month. That means that ne Wilson men are determined to force not possible for them to get what they vant in the way of instructions. Mr. Byrd is devoting some time to getting in touch with the leaders from all parts of the state.

Mann's Novel Proposition.

Gov. Mann has fallen in line with other governors of the states, and is strong for an amendment to the Constitution to selves, but he favors the Taft idea to office whatsoever. He says that the in-fluence of ex-Presidents in the Senate would be conservative and wholesome and that there would never be more than two or three there at any time. Gov. "Leonard" Seamless Porcelain Refrigerators Constructed to Insure Healthfulness, to Save Ice and to Last a Lifetime.

A poor refrigerator is the greatest menace to health in warm weather. Don't risk dangerous illness by using food that has been in a poorly made or worn-out, germladen refrigerator. Insist on a refrigerator that is germ-proof and easily kept spotlessly clean.

"Leonard" Refrigerators are so constructed that no moisture can penetrate into the walls and breed germs or odors. There's no wood inside the "Leonard" Refrigerator. The rapid circulation of air keeps the interior dry and sweet and insures a uniformly low temperature through all the compartments.

The large illustration to the left is an exact diagram (reduced more than one-half) of the "Leonard" Refrigerator's construction under the ice compartment. Note the care given even the smallest details.

This Feature Prevents Accidental Leakage

Note the depression of the porcelain top of the provision chamber just under the ice compartment. Water leaking through a hole accidentally made in the ice chamber cannot reach the insulation. It will follow this depression and pass off through the waste pipe of its own accord.

Removable Waste Pipe of Brass

The heavy brass waste pipe lifts out readily for cleaning, and is just as readily replaced. Note how its top slips over the short pipe that is part of the porcelain top of the pro-vision chamber, catching all the water from the ice.

10 Walls of Insulation to Save Ice

Note the ten walls of insulation that keep the cold in and prevent the waste of ice. The dead-air space and the thick blanket of "Polar-felt" entirely surround the inner case of the refrigerator. You get the full benefit of all the ice used.

Provision Chambers of Seamless Porcelain

There's nothing as durable or as sanitary as Leonard Porcelain Linings. Pure-white, unbreakable porcelain, fused on steel, like a bathtub. It will not tarnish, crack or peel off. It is so hard it cannot be scratched with a knife or a hatpin.

cracks in the Leonard Refrigerator-nothing in which dirt or germs can hide. It is as easily cleaned as a china dish. Scalding with boiling water will not harm it in any way.

Depression Around Drain Pipe

Notice the depression in the bottom of the provision chamber around the drainage pipe. Surplus water in cleaning, or food accidentally spilled, drains into the pipe and does not need to be wiped out through the door of the re-

Cold Air Trap Inside Refrigerator

This is the round, cuplike trap into which the upper portion of the drain pipe extends. This fills with water and prevents cold air from leaving the refrigerator. The pipe and trap are both easily removed through the door of the refrigerator. It is not necessary to get under the refrigerator

Adjustable Screw on Waste Pipe

The bowl of the lower waste pipe, in which the cold-air trap rests, fits firmly into the bottom of the provision chamber. The adjustable screw on the bottom of this pipe engages with the outside case of the refrigerator and holds this pipe firmly in place.
